Tournament will play 5 handed

Players begin with 10,000 starting chips

Registration and re-entries available until the beginning of level 7

When three players remain, blind level duration will change to 10 minutes

Players are paid out a maximum of what they currently have in their stack

(for example, if a player has 1000 chips in their stack, they will receive a maximum payout of 1000 chips per opponent no matter how many points/chips their winning board is worth)

The top/high card board is scored first (and then the middle/2 card board, and finally the bottom/4 card board)

If a player loses all of their chips after paying out the top (and/or middle) board, then they are eliminated from the tournament, even if they have a winning middle or bottom board

A high card will be used to select which player will be moved to another table for rebalancing

If a player is not present at the conclusion of the deal, their hand is dead and they will have to pay out the required non-bonus points to the winning player(s)

Two boards will be run for each set/hand, after the first board is scored, it is removed and a new board is run out and scored using the same process

4-color decks will be used for all non-hold'em tournaments

$100 of each entry contributes to the prize pool

3% taken from the prize pool for dealers and staff

Play will continue until a winner is determined

Ante will become size of small blind when 4 or less handed

Players start with $100 bounties. When a player knocks another player out, they will be paid out half of their opponent's bounty, with the other half being added to their current bounty. If the player's bounty cannot be divided equally, the extra chip will be rounded into the bounty payout.

Players will start with four 25-denomination chips signifying their current bounty.

These chips are not in play and must be kept visible on the table at all times.

Players begin with 15,000 in tournament chips

Registration and re-entries through the first nine (9) levels

When heads-up is reached, blind level duration will change to 10 minutes

$100 of each entry goes towards the prize pool and $100 towards the bounty prize pool
